The Issue

Retrenchment is a challenging and distressing time for all employees. Company decision makers and executors will also experience significant stress during these times and will themselves be subject to an array of emotions. Hence, it is difficult for them to provide additional emotional support to employees at that time, which is why it is recommended to bring in an objective service provider to administer it.

The Benefits

- Retrenched employees feel supported & their emotional response lessened
- The internal company culture can be maintained due to the perception it creates with remaining staff
- The company's brand is protected by highlighting its commitment to employees who remain, as well as making retrenched staff feel supported

Why Choose Us

Harmony Counselling is the only counselling agency offering specifically tailored retrenchment counselling support services in Singapore.

With over 25 years of commercial experience, Director & Counsellor Martin Williams gives us a level of professionalism and understanding of the corporate environment which few other counselling agencies can match.

Our Solutions

We provide guidance for your employees through these experiences, ensuring their mental and emotional stability are maintained through:

- Individual counselling & emotional support
- Self-care & wellbeing presentations
- Support group sessions
